THE STANDS IN FULTON MARKET. ALDERMEN INQUIRING HOW THEY HAVE BEEN AP-

PORTIONED. The Committee on Markets of the Board of Alder-

The Committee on Markets of the Board of Aldermen continued yeaterday its inquiry into the disposition of the stands in Fulton Market. Charles E. Pearsall, of No. 14 Fulton-st., said that he was a standholder in the old market, and had a permit for the new market; yet he had been told by the chief clerk of the market that no stand would be given to him. He said that he was a fruit dealer. One-sixth of the space in the new market was taken up with restaurants, which he thought had no proper place in a market. He knew of only ore other person besides Mr. Fitzpatrick who had been refused the privilege of keeping a restaurant in the market. George B. Weaver, a fish dealer in Washington Market, testified that he at one time endeavorch to get some stands in Fulton Market, but he was refused, and afterwards the same stands were rented to Mr. Blackford. He watched for the advertisement, but he did not see any, although the Controller said that the stands had been advertised. Had they been offered at public sale he knew of several persons who would have purchased them. Restaurants and oyster stalls, he said, draw customers to the markets. He expressed the pinion that Fitzpatrick had been shamefully treated.

John C. Winters, a standholder in the new market, who has been a fish dealer in the old market for twenty years, said that so far as he knew there had been a jin-t apportionment of the stands were smaller, the same rent was charged. He thought that the stands could all be rented even if the restaurants were removed; at the same time he besieved that the restaurants attracted custom. At one time he paid the former clerk of the market, Mr. Sullivan, $500 as a bonus to have a stand transferred from another man's name to that of his (the witness's) father. He thought it was a common practice to pay money in this way; no receipts were taken. Whether or not the Controller received it he could not tell.

Robert Yates, who has been in the oyster business in the old market since 1852, said that he had been refused a place in

TOO BUSY TO GIVE INFORMATION.

A special meeting of the Dock Commissioners was held yesterday afternoon. Some time ago the Com-missioners received a communication from J. L. Douglass, secretary of the Merchants' Fire Insur-Douglass, secretary of the Merchants' Fire Insurance Company, asking for a number of running feet of piers and but kneads on the North and East Rivers, together with a number of steam boilers on the piers. The Board replied that lite was too short and time too valuable to perform such an arduous task unless the city's employes were to be paid for the work of answering those conundrams; but that the rec rds and maps of the Department were open to public inspection at any time. A reply to that reply was received from Mr. Douglass yesterday and read to the Board. The letter said:

Your communication declining to give me the running day and read to the Board. The letter said:

Your communication declining to give me the running lengts of the piers and buildheads on the North and East Rivers, and the number of steam boilers upon the piers in each river, is received with much surprise. As a member of the Committee on Water Supply of the New-York Board of Fire Underwriters and as an officer of this company, I was and am recking the information for presentation to Mayor Edson's Committee on Water Supply to-morrow (15ta) at 2:30 p. m. I much recret that your subordinates are so faily occupied that they can't find time to answer the inquiries made in my letter, and am forced to the conclusion that they must be eigrossed in a discussion of the defalcations that now and then seem to surround some branches of your Department, which I very much regret to see, as amounced in the newspapers of this date. A the information I asked for is very important to property owners and others who want a greater supply of water than at present, I will again request that you give me answer officially before 12 m. to-morrow. It can be answered with but little labor or trouble.

When this letter was read there were ejaculations

When this letter was read there were ejaculations of surprise from the Commissioners at the modesty of the request, and several allusions on their part to "the cheek of the man," and to "his impudence being equalled only by his egotism." Then the Commi sioners settled down to routine work. Mr. Voorhis, the new treasurer, moved that George O. B. ach be appointed to assist the treasurer at a salary of $1,800 per year, Mr. Beach was appointed.

THE FAMILY OF THE BEROIC ENGINEER.

THE FAMILY OF THE HEROIC ENGINEER,

"E. M. S." sends to this office $25 for the family of Joseph A. Seeds, the engineer who lost his life in saving the lives of the passengers on a Pennsylvania Railroad train on October 22, 1882, and asks if any steps have been taken by the passengers on the train or by the railroad company to provide for the family of the man who nied to save the lives of the passengers and the property of the company. The facts are these: Up to February i of this year the total amount of money sent to Mrs. Seeds from far and near was $833. Only a small part of this was sent by persons who said that they were passengers on the train which Seeds saved. No meeting was ever held by the passengers to raise money for the family, or otherwise provide for their future, and, so far as known, no large number of them have shown any interest in the matter. But the train was a local Sunday train which left Jersey City at 1:15. It was crowded with people—neariy six hundred in all—but it is well known that the majority of persons who fill local Sunday trains in City at 1:15. It was crowded with people—nearly of six hundred in all—but it is well known that the majority of persons who fill local Sunday trains in the vicinity of New-York are not of the class that responds readily to appeals for aid of any kind. This it is thought may account for the failure of mist of these passengers to contribute for the relief in of the Seeds family. As to the Pennsylvania Railroad, the officials say that more has been done by the company for the Seeds family than it is customary to do for the families of men who lose their lives in its service. Since the letter of "A. M. M." was published in The Tribune last Sunday, describing the needs of the family and appealing to the travelling public to raise a fund for them by subscriptions of $1 or more, contributions amounting to $155 have been previously acknowledged: Morris K. FORTY-SECOND-ST. RESERVOIR NEEDED. FORTY-SECOND-ST. RESERVOIR NEEDED.

James M. Smith, a contractor and a member of the firm that constructed the Weehawken tunnel, gave his views to the Water Commission yesterday in regard to the proposed aqueduct and dam. A 15foot tunnel, he thought, would be more economical than one 12 feet in diameter. The 12-foot tunnel would cost $400,000 per mile and the one 15 feet in diameter would cost $490,000 per mile. The proposed Quaker Bridge Dam, he estimated, would cost $3,090,000. J. L. Douglass, of the Board of Fire Underwriters, asked that the commission recommend that the Forty-second Street Reservoir be filled with water. He said that the Fire Department was unable to put out the recent fire in the top story of a building in Spruce-st. because there was not swificient pressure in the water mains. The commission unanimously adopted the following resolution:

Resolved. That from the testimony before us it is the judgment of this commission that the act entitled "Au act pertaining to the removal of the Forty-second Street Reservor in the city of New-York" should be immediately repealed, and that such measures shall be taken, without delay, by the city authorities, and, if necessary, by the Legislature, as shall cause the said reservoir to be immediately filled, kept filled and in the greatest possible state of efficiency for putting out fires and such further use as shall not interfere with its efficiency for such purpose.

on Monday the commission will visit the Croton water-shed and inspect the site of the proposed

SMUGGLERS PAYING PENALTIES.

SMUGGLERS PAYING PENALTIES.

A dispatch from St. Louis yesterday announced the discovery of an attempt to snuegele valuable goods through the Constom House here by Eugene Jaccard & Co., a leading jewelry house in that city, by the efforts of Special Agents Thomas H. Keele and John Douglass, the latter a brother-in-iaw of Senator Windom.

Collector Kobertson was sitting at his desk attending to his routine duties about two months ago, when a stranger, who proved to be a jeweller, approached him and informed him that an agent of the Western jewelry house had recently smuegled a quantity of goods, chefly set and unset diamonds, from a European steamer. Secretary Folger detailed Special Agents Keefe and Douglass to make an investigation of the case. They went to St. Louis and there found in the store of Jaccard & Co. some mounted diamonds which no other house excepting Tiffany & Co. had maporised and paid duty on. It is said that one of the firm, Eugene Cuendet, then made a full contession and that he admitted that he had evaded the duty simply to meet his expenses when abroad. The total cost of the smuggled goods in Paris was about 18,000 frances; the duty upon them would be about $600. But the duty, with the penatics and cost added, amounted to about $7,000, which, it is said, the firm has paid to the Government.

WASHED OVERBOARD AND BACK AGAIN.

WASHED OVERBOARD AND BACK AGAIN. WASHED OVERBOARD AND BACK AGAIN.

The ocean vessels which arrived yesterday report very bad weather, which no doubt accounts for the delay of the steamship City of Richmond, from Liverpool; the Surrey, from Amsterdam, and the Brooklyn City, from Bristol City, It is feared that the City of Richmond has met with some accident to her machinery. The Newegian bark Worve arrived after a lifty days' voyage from Bibbao. On January 11 she had a terrific hurricane with high seas, when she lost her foretopgailant mast and yards, and several sails. Three of the sailors were washed overboard by a heavy sea, and by the returning swell were swept back again to the vessel, when they were caught by the crew and saved. The bark British Monarch, from Calcutta, had severe weather off the Cape of Good Hope, and Edward Bradley, a sailor, fell from aloft into the sea and was drowned before assistance could be rendered. The steamship Geiser, from Copenhagen, had a tempestuous voyage and shipped many heavy seas, but sustained no material damage.

ANOTHER DAY OF MISERABLE WEATHER. SIDEWALKS AND STREET CROSSINGS IN A WRETCHED CONDITION.

Yesterday was another day filled with disgusting weather. It was not particularly cold, but it was rainy, snowy, sleety, foggy and muddy. For some time in the morning the sidewalks were coated with ice that made walking both disagreeable and dangerons. A steady rair, mingled with sleet and snow, soon changed the covering of ice to oozy slosh, that added new horrors to the condition of the streets and crosswalks. All day long Broadway presented a most dismal spectacle. A feeble attempt had been made the night before to clear the middle of the roadway for a space a few feet wide. The undertaking had not been attended with the most gratifying results. Slosh and mud reigned suppreme; dripping stages and trucks ploughed heavily through the fifth; drenched pedestrians picked their way laboriously through pools of foul water, and straggled with erratic umbrellas that were the sport of chilling gusts of wind; while great clouds of steam rose from numerous steam-heating traps and mingled with the cold mist.

The condition of the side streets was even worse than on the previous day. The foullooking mixture of street filth and halfmelted snow had not been removed nor had it been washed away by the drizzling rain. At thousands of street corners where no attempt had been made to clear away the snow from sewer openings great ponds of drity water had collected with a seum of muddy snow on their surfaces. Men, women and children were forced either to wade nearly knee-deep through these semi-liquid collections, or to make a circuit for half a biock or so through the fifth in the middle of the street. Later in the afternoon a heavy rain began falling and hundreds of thousands of disgusted citizens in dulged the short-lived hope that kind nature would come to their relief and clean the streets. But she didn't. The rain stopped and left the situation as bad as ever.

The record of Hudnut's thermometer was as follows: 6a, m. 32°: 9a, m., 33°: 12 m., 35°; 3:30

The reports at the Signal Station showed that the rainfall in this city for eight hours previous to 3 p. m. was .17 of an inch. The only place in the country where there was a greater fall of rain was Philadelphia, where .44 of an inch was reported for the same period. There was considerable clear and fair weather in the South and Southwest, but elsewhere clouds, rain, sleet and snow were reported. At Cincinnati the weather was clear, and no rain fell for the eight hours before 3 p. m. There was a general rise of the thermometer, as on the previous day. mometer, as on the previous day.

PESTERED BY ALLEGED MONEY-LOSS.

Miss Cataarine Doyle, a pretty young woman hving at No. 5 Perry-st., found some money in Sixth-ave, on November 21 as she was going home from the dry-goods store of Stern Brothers, where she is employed as a saleswoman. She searched for but failed to find the owner of the money. She then, by the advice of Justice Murray, whose friend she is, inserted an advertisement in a daily paper. The following evening a number of communications reached her from this and neighboring cities. One came from Orange, N. J. The writer stated that his house was robbed some time ago, and a quantity of valuable property stolen, together with a "love of a pug dog." He suggested that the money found by Miss Doyle might be the proceeds of the rob-ery. A few days laier, Charles Motell, who lives in Friteenth-st., near Eighth-ave., called on Miss Doyle and stated that he lost $132 on November 23, near Twenty-first-st, and Seventh-ave. Miss Boyle informed him that the money in her possession was found two days before his loss, and that the sum was much less than that mentioned by him. Motell, insisted that the money must be his. Between his importunities and the continued arrival of letters from alleged losers of money, Miss Doyle was bothered almost beyond endurance. The climax was capped, however, when, a few days ago, she was served with a summons issued at the instance of Motell, requiring her to appear before Justice Duffy, in the Jefferson Market Poice Court. She at first paid no attention to it, but finally called on Justice Murray, who accompanied her to court. Yes erday Motell was present. He said that he had lost three days awaiting her appearance. A private examination was had in the course of which Miss Doyle said that the money that she had found was less than $25, and that Motell first stated that he lost the money at Twenty-first-st, and Seventh-ave, and afterward on Seventeenth-st. In reply Motell said that he could produce witnesses to prove that Miss Doyle had told conflicting stories about the money. To enable him to do this, Justice Duffy postponed further action in the case until next Tuesday.

THE WATER-PRONT OF BROOKLYN.

THE WATER-FRONT OF BROOKLYN.

A conference was held in Mayor Low's office yesterday in regard to matters affecting the water-front of Brooklyn, legislation respecting which is pending in Albany. Among those present were Jeremiah P. Robinson, W. H. Beard, Alderman Stering, James W. Smith, Frederick Scholes and J. G. L. Boettcher. The Mayor called attention to the pending bills in regard to the building of piers in the city. Mr. Robinson, an extensive warshouse and wharf owner, urged that it would be unwise to change the policy of the city in regard to docks. Brooklyn had become the place where the commerce of New-York found its best facilities, because the warehousing interests were in the hams of private owners. The Dock Department of this city was a curse to it. Brooklyn had taken the warehousing business away from New-York. Mr. Robinson did not think the Government should enter into business competition with private enterprise. The wharves which Brooklyn owned had cost too much and paid little revenue. It would be bad to give the Common Council power over the foot of the streets. No measure could work worse disaster to the city in its commercial interests than the proposed ones.

Mayorflow said that the real question was one of ownership and that the city could find relief from the lack of public wharves by a fair purchase of the needed property. The question was one between public and private interests. The bills proposed to give the city a clear title to land under water, and this it should have. Among the other speakers were John McDermott and William Eichardson, who favored public piers, and F. Scholes, who advocated private ownership.

WHY YOUNG GRAY WAS DISCHARGED.

In speaking of the criticisms by Goddard & Co., published yesterday, of the action of Judge Gildersleeve in suspending sentence in the case of John Gray, a young man in their employ at No. 516 Broadway, who had been indicted for having stolen trimmed goods to the value of $10,000, Assistant District-Attorney O'Brien said: "Young Gray is the son of very respectable parents who live in Jersey City. Several months ago Gray was induced by Havner to rob his employers of packages of trimming, he was arrested on December 6. It was on the young man's testimony that Havner was convicted. In view of this fact, Mr. Goddard asked Judge Gildersleeve to exercise judicial elemency toward the young man. Several petitions were sent to Judge Gildersleeve, asking him to discharge Gray on the ground that it was his first offence and that the amount mentioned in the indictment had already been paid. The Judge in consequency decided finally to suspend the sentence."

"I am surprised," said Judge Gildersleeve, when asked about the matter, "that Mr. Goddard should now express any dissatisfaction at my decision in the case, because he came here and appeared to be perfectly satisfied with the course I intended to pursue." WHY YOUNG GRAY WAS DISCHARGED.

BOOTH'S THEATRE BOUGHT BY J. D. FISH.

BOOTH'S THEATRE BOUGHT BY J. D. FISH.

"I have bought the Booth's Theatre property," said James D. Fish yesterday. "The price paid was nearly $550,000. I do not eare to give the exact figures. I paid cash for it. What I shall do with the property I do not know as yet. I have an offer on hand now to alter the building for business, for $85,000. Mr. Stetson may want it."

Mr. Stetson said that be did not believe that the property had been disposed of any more than it had been a dozen times previously. "It does not look reasonable." he. remarked, "that any one would pay $550,000 cash for it when I could have had it for $500,000. I offered $475,000, and this is all I think it is worth. When the syndicate of capitalists had it, I know it was offered to every prominent dry.goods house and every capitalist in the country for $550,000. But they could not get a purchaser. The Araes people hesitated over any offer until I lost the chance of getting Irving, and lost a great many other good attractions which Wallack has now secured for his old house, and I do not want Booth's Theatre for next season at any price."

ACCUSING A CUSTOM HOUSE BROKER.

An attempt, which will be laid before the Grand Jury, now in session, to swindle the Government out of a large amount of duty on a cargo of potatoes, brought here recently by the steamship Crest from Scotland, has been discovered by Captain Brackett. The potatoes were consigned to Alexander Khinds, an importer in this city, and the examiners reported them partly damaged. Fifty per cent of the duty was refunded, and the papers were duly entered in the Custom House. The papers were alterward abstracted by a Custom House broker, and altered so as to allow a 100 per cent "refund," upon the claim that the potatoes were ruined. The cargo was then sold to a farner in Fultonville, N. Y., who was formerly a sea captain. A few days ago the matter was brought to the attention of Collector Robertson and Captain Brackett. The broker was taken before Assistant United States District-Attorney Fiero, and he admitted taking the papers but denied the charge of altering them. ACCUSING A CUSTOM HOUSE BROKER.

yesterday if any attempt would be made to interfere with this rehearsal, it being, in fact, a regular production of the play, except that no admission fee will be charged. The Mayor said that he had not considered the question, and did not know whether or not he had the power to interfere. Acting Superintendent Thome was asked yesterday whether or not, there being no license for the theatre, the police would interfere with the rehearsal. Mr. Thorne advised the inquirers to find out the law upon the subject; he warned them that he should not permit the law to be violated. Accordingly, the managers retired to take further counsel on the subject.

Seth Bahington, a prominent anti-Monopolist, has presented a petition to the Board of Finance, which brings up the question of railroad taxation in a new form. He asks that the National Docks Ratiway Company should be cited to appear before the Board of Commissioners of Appeal in cases of taxation and show cause why the property that it has acquired for railroad and other purposes should not be assessed for the taxes of 1882 and 1883. At a meeting of the board on Wednesday night, Commissioner Smith offered a resolution that the request of the petitioner should be complied with and that the assessors in whose districts the company's property is should be directed to propare maps and valuations of it for purposes of taxation.
